

Social Worker - Case Manager Dietitian

United Jewish Council of the East Side (UJCES) needs a Social Worker Case Manager Dietitian with BA degree in Social Work or Nutrition / Dietetics and experience developing and providing social services to the elderly.

Work with other professionals to help develop and coordinate health, social care, and cultural programs for NORC participants. Implement and evaluate programs to assist in the promotion of health and wellness.

Interview clients to assess needs. Inform clients of available resources.

Coordinate health and wellness activities and programs; promote weekly health and wellness activities and events. Identify community resources that address food access and insecurity, healthy food production, distribution, and consumption.

Use multidimensional psychosocial assessment health indicator survey tools and patient health questionnaires to assess presenting problems in older adults.

Communicate with some Chinese immigrants to assess their case, understand their needs, and render assistance to clients seeking support, benefits, or food and health resources.

Conduct necessary, timely follow-up communications. Assist clients regarding personal crisis matters. Use electronic database (e.g., STARSPeerplace) to document and maintain client and case information; manage client information confidentially and professionally in accordance with New York City Department for the Aging policies.

Update program director on case status. Participate in case conferences and in team and staff meetings; answer phone calls and messages; greet, interview, and communicate empathetically with clients. Manage office schedule, files, and documents.

Work Mon-Fri 9:00AM-5:00PM. NYC 10002. Sal: $60,965. Send resumes to: BZaltsman@UJCES.org